The Type-R series intake manifold is a genuine Honda part that comes from the Integra and Civic Type-R series cars. A larger intake plenum and short runners make for an excellent intake manifold. This manifold will bolt directly to any B16A cylinder head with no modifications. For LS, RS, GS, and GS-R cylinder heads, modification is needed.

I'm surprised no one has done a technical detailed review of the K20C1. Not even Honda has any info about it. At least with the old Integra Type R B18C5 engine, Honda published a bunch of technical differences between the base and the Type R engine. Wonder if it'll have forged internals, similar to the F20/F22.
